THE LEGEND OF THE VILLAGE IDIOT OSKAR THE OSTRICH

HERE AT THE VILLAGE IDIOT
WE RAISE OUR GLASSES TO
THE FOOLISH RENEGADES, THE ADVENTUROUS IDIOTS AND
ALL THE PEOPLE WHO REFUSE
TO LIVE LIFE BY THE RULES OF NORMALITY.

The Legendary VILLAGE IDIOT Oskar the ostrich was hatched in the backyard of a Durban shebeen in the decadent 1980s.

Hand raised and bottle-fed a diet of mampoer and whisky by the local spirit distillers, OSKAR naturally grew into a raging bar fly, whose antics are still revered and spoken about fondly to this day.

The life of the Durban party scene, gaining a reputation as a general ruffian, relentless womaniser, and joker – who on more than one occasion got into bar brawls over his alleged long neck drink-stealing technique. In such battles his speciality was the flying “Karate Kid” round house kick, which was as effective as it was spectacular.

Being the free-spirit that he was, OSKAR decided to leave Durban to sample the Cape Town Nightlife after losing a drunken bet that he could make it there on foot, racing his friend Blikkies on his XT 500, in under 10 hours – the numerous paternity suits he was facing was probably also a contributing factor to his decision to re-locate unexpectedly.

OSKAR surfaced a few weeks later in a friend's Loop Street bar, where his heavy drinking sessions, idiotic antics and outrageous dance moves, which were often mistaken as primitive mating rituals, caused his legend to grow.

It is rumored that, in this very spot where you're standing right now, OSKAR found his blissful place in the sun. Legend also has it that he still makes an appearance from time to time, in the shadows, when the music is right and the whisky is flowing.

So if your head feels a little sore in the morning after having a good time, it might have been the booze ..but maybe, just maybe, it was a roundhouse kick from OSKAR as well.

Here at The Village Idiot we raise our glasses to the foolish renegades, the adventurous idiots and all the people who refuse to live life by the rules of normality.

BE FUN, BE STUPID,
BE AN IDIOT!!
